

Are you wondering...

- *Why are teachers wearing black once a week?
- *Why is there no tutoring at lunch or after school?
- *Why are there so many students in some of your classes?
- *Why are so many club advisors no longer holding meetings?
- *Why is it taking so long to get your homework, quizzes and tests back?

Your teachers have been working without a new contract for over 400 days and counting. The law says that the old contract should be enforced until a new contract is negotiated, but the district leadership has been violating the old contract.

Teachers are standing up for what's right and are working to the rule!

This means they are only working the hours for which they are paid.

Teachers want to go back to doing what they do best--teaching and helping their students!
